GET PUBLISHED!™

Get Published! Workshop Description

Get Published! provides your students the opportunity to a creative coaching experience with Peter H. Reynolds.

Imagine having New York Times best-selling author/illustrator Peter H. Reynolds in your classroom, inspiring your students to write and create all year long! You can with Get Published! Peter coaches your students through videos and activities, sharing real-world tips on developing characters and storylines, the value of collaboration and editing, and the joy of publishing books.

Students can create and publish their books using the Get Published! software, and their books are saved in virtual bookshelves where they can be shared with classmates, and printed as eBooks. Hard copies of books can also be ordered (separate costs apply for printing by our professional printer).

Workshop Objectives

- Educators will have a grasp on the basic mechanics of Get Published!.
- Students will exhibit deeper mastery of their writing skills using Get Published! as a tool to create and communicate.
- Teachers will be able to apply the use of Get Published! to support and extend existing writing curriculum.

Workshop Design

This workshop is estimated to take approximately 15 hours to complete, during which time participants can explore course content, watch videos, and complete the required performance tasks (if they are seeking a certificate of professional development hours). Participants are free to progress through the workshop and their own pace, and on their own schedules. Access to the material will not expire.

Audience

The content has been customized for K-12 teachers, technology specialists, library media specialists, and literacy specialists/teachers.
