

EATER GUIDES

The 12 Best New York Restaurants for a Marriage Proposal

Thursday, June 23, 2011, by Greg Morabito

As evidenced by Racked's Wedding Week last week, we're deep into nuptials season. Thinking about popping the big question? Here's a list of twelve restaurants that are perfect for a marriage proposal. Some are very fancy, others are not, but all of them serve great food in unique dining rooms, and will know how to handle your special moment. As a bonus, we've included anecdotes from the chefs, owners and general managers of each establishment, about couples that have asked and answered at their tables.

Click on each restaurant name for contact and location info, as well as more Eater coverage.

8) The Meatball Shop: Daniel Holzman and Michael Chernow's The Meatball Shop is not a fancy restaurant, but it is a place that many people love both for the food, and the convivial vibe. As it turns out, this Lower East Side hot spot was recently part of an elaborate marriage proposal.

Damien Domenack, General Manager: "We had a gentleman call up and ask if we would deliver a small order of meatballs to his hotel room, and he asked if we would place a hole in one of the balls. He needed the hole in order to place a ring inside, we of course were able to do so. Not less than an hour after the delivery he called us back and thanked us, turns out he got a yes!"