

NEW OPENINGS

UES Meatball Shop Now Open

By James Mulcahy

August 12, 2013

Photo by: Cherie Cincilla

Another outpost of The Meatball Shop officially opens tonight. We told you about this one last week - it's on the Upper East Side and is being billed as Michael Chernow and Daniel Holzman's return to the neighborhood since it's where they met back in the day as kids. The shop, which is the largest in the NYC chainlet, will take reservations for parties of 8 or more. We dropped in for a first look and scored some pictures - the decor is very similar to what you'd find at the other locales. The duo who operates these venues seems to have this down to a science.

There is one new thing that caught our eye, though. This is the first location that will serve brunch, and the must-try item has to be the breakfast burger. Pictured above, this whopper (not like that) contains fried egg, meatballs and bacon on a bun. Can you say hangover cure? More photos below.

Photo by: Cherie Cincilla