

BK FOOD

01/28/15 2:09pm

Brooklyn's Best Super Bowl Party Packages

by Sarah Zorn Top Story No Comments

Like Share 3 Tweet 12 g+ 1 Submit tumblr. + Pin it

We're just going to out ourselves right away: We first heard about "Deflate-Gate" from Nugget Spot in Gramercy, when they pitched us their Super Bowl special of "under-inflated" nuggets (a canny ruse for price gouging popcorn chicken, but whatever). What we're saying is, we essentially view the world through a limited lens of food, so would never deign to insult the intelligence of football fans by attempting to engage in sports talk. We'll just stick to what we know by spotlighting superior tailgate spreads instead, equally appropriate for true football enthusiasts, or whoever's just in it for the hot wings.

The Meatball Shop: Not feeling fried chicken? You can order buckets full of balls at the Williamsburg outpost of The Meatball Shop. You heard us right; only $45 for 25 (fully inflated) chicken, veggie, spicy pork, beef, or pizza-flavored balls!

No Order Deadline

170 Bedford Avenue, Williamsburg