JobsCrush

Overview

In 2015 I co-founded JobsCrush with my best friend. JobsCrush is a web-based application for gathering and organising all job posts across multiple social networks. I built the identity, set the overall style, drew a huge amount of wireframes to improve the user experience and designed more than 60 different pages, modal views and interactions.

Gosh

Overview

I redesigned the whole identity and interface (which I originally designed in 2014) to provide a great experience for customers of the Gosh widget. Due to a massive change in AppLovin's brand identity and new requirements on the technical front, this redesign was just the next logical step. I also designed and built the landing page. GOSH automatically gathers and displays on your website social media that you are interested in and presents them in an unbranded slider or grid gallery.
