

Max 86°
Min 70°

NEW YORK

Thursday, September 6, 2012

MAYBELLINE OFFICIAL MAKEUP

► From street to a lot different Spring/Summer to Lincoln Cen

Fast
The

metro going out

NYC's #1 FREE DAILY

Summer's last licks: three grownup ice cream sammies

The fun of the Chipwich was not so much the existence of a sandwich made of ice cream and cookies, but the actual eating of it. You can't just bite into an ice cream sandwich — unless you have exceptional teeth — and it had a 15-minute lifespan, so it had to be eaten quickly. It was a sticky, drippy affair that you probably haven't had the pleasure of embarking on for years. Here are three adult versions to try before the summer melts away.

THE MEATBALL SHOP

Ice Cream Sandwich at the Meatball Shop

www.themeatballshop.com
Various locations

These sweet sliders pack a baseball-sized scoop of gelato between two soft homemade cookies. As with the rest of the Meatball Shop's menu, you can design your own cookie/gelato combos — the mixing of top and bottom cookies is encouraged. We like the fresh herb-flecked mint gelato with walnut brownie cookies, or the fragrant gingersnap filled with the fruity gelato of the day (check the website for daily specials). The MBS recommends pairing the sandwiches with a glass of Moscato d'Asti — the fruity sparkling wine cuts through the rich sweetness.

ON SALE
SUNDAY AT 11 AM

ALL SEATS

$15