

HURRICANE WATCH

The Ultimate Hurricane Sandy Dining Guide to NYC

Wednesday, October 31, 2012, by Greg Morabito

Water line on the iconic Peck Slip truss of the Brooklyn Bridge. by [Lockhart Steele/Curbed NY]

Although Lower Manhattan is still without power this evening, many restaurants north of 34th Street are now open, and tons of Brooklyn bars and restaurants are back in action. Some downtown restaurants are also serving food by candlelight. Here's an updated guide to what's open right now. Eater will continue to update this guide tomorrow, so do keep sending information to the tipline. A huge thanks to all the readers, chefs, and restaurateurs that sent in tips over since Sunday night.

The Meatball Shop: The Williamsburg location is open till 2 a.m.

The Meatball Shop: From Facebook: "Hey Ballers - we're not going to let Hurricane Sandy keep us from serving up balls. While 64 Greenwich will be closing tomorrow, 84 Stanton and 170 Bedford will remain open pending further notice. 64 Greenwich will remain open through tonight. Stay safe - we'll conquer this storm with balls!"

The Meatball Shop: The LES and Williamsburg locations are open for business tonight (West Village is closed). Daniel Holzman is working the line tonight at the Bedford Ave location. The Stanton Street restaurant is packed:

ACME ARDESIA
BABBO
BALTHAZAR
BENOIT
BOQUERIA
COMMERCE
DAVID BURKE FISHTAIL
DAVID BURKE KITCHEN
DO OR DINE
DOVETAIL
HAS MAP
HURRICANE SANDY
HURRICANE WATCH
JO'S
KATZ'S
KIN SHOP
LITTLENECK
NORTHERN SPY FOOD CO.
P.J. CLARKE'S
PAULIE GEE'S