

GOODBYE HANGOVER

Drunk Dining: NYC's 10 Best Restaurants After a Night of Drinking

Let's face it: A drunk diner is a ravenous diner. Here's our roundup of the top meals to soak up the alcohol, from fat meatballs to cheese-topped nachos to breakfast with all the fixings

July 31, 2014, Linnea Covington

5

Share

Like

Share 2.1k

Tweet 12

It's 4am on a Saturday, you just closed the bar – and now what? The logical option is to stumble home, but who's logical after a cocktail-fueled night? Instead, most revelers are looking for one thing when they stream out of the bar in the wee hours of the morning: hearty food. In the city that never sleeps, you'll find lots of it, including buttery biscuits, fried chicken and pierogies served at all hours of the day and night. Here are our top picks to slay your hangover.

Meatballs from The Meatball Shop (Photo: The Meatball Shop)

The Meatball Shop

One word: Meatballs. There's no better way to pad the stomach than with big, juicy meatballs. Sink your teeth into a spicy pork hero or a steaming bowl of classic beef meatballs topped with parmesan cream. The Meatball Shop also caters to vegetarians, with hulking veggie meatballs served over freshly milled polenta or mashed potatoes with mushroom gravy. On weekends, the Lower East Side and Williamsburg branches are open until 4am, making it a perfect pit stop before you stagger home. Various locations, themeatballshop.com