

Featured

Where to Take Dad for Father's Day? Ask the Chefs!

By Lauren Shockey Fri., Jun. 17 2011 at 7:45 AM

Comments (1)

Categories: Featured, Shockey

Share 7

Like

Submit

4 retweet

0 Digg

Continued from page 1

Love Hope City

Unlike Mother's Day, which is basically synonymous with "brunch," Father's Day isn't really a foodie holiday. But Dad still probably wants to get wined and dined by his brood, no? But where to take him for his special day? Rather than dole out our own suggestions, we asked several New York City chefs where they'd take their father for Father's Day. Excluding their own restaurants, naturally.

"I would bring [my dad] to Fedora because he loves tongue, he loves fried chicken, and he loves steak, and they serve the best fried chicken, the best tongue, and the best steak I've had under one roof. Their rice is also spectacular. I could eat it for days on end." --Daniel Holzman, the Meatball Shop