

A New York Guide To Eating In Or Going Out For The Super Bowl

The time has come: This Sunday the Denver Broncos and Seattle Seahawks will go head-to-head in Super Bowl XLVIII. No matter which team you're rooting for, Super Bowl parties are always something to look forward to. Between the delicious food spreads, the awesome commercials, and of course, the gripping, high-stakes ~~half-time show~~ football game, this Sunday is going to be a good one.

If you haven't finalized plans for the big event, not to worry, because we've culled a list of NYC viewing parties and special tailgate offers, so you'll be set for game day. There's something for everyone, whether you're staying in and hosting a few friends or looking for a bigger space to watch with more rowdy crowds. Either way, the day is sure to be a total winner.

The Meatball Shop's Bucket O' Balls

What's a Super Bowl party without The Meatball Shop's famous meatballs? For $45, you can score a bucket of 25 meatballs with the dressing of your choice. This special is also offered for patrons dining in the restaurant.

The Meatball Shop, 170 Bedford Avenue (between 7th and 8th Streets), Brooklyn; 718-551-0520.