

EATER MAPS

Beating the Heat: Mapping New York's Best Frozen Treats

Thursday, June 24, 2010, by Amanda

It's another scorcher today, and a look at the Eater weather widget shows there's no sign of this heat wave letting up. Luckily for New Yorkers, this city is blessed with endless excellent frozen dessert options. Case in point: the people at Quality Meats wrote in yesterday to say they've launched an ice cream counter where they sell single serving ice cream cakes, amongst other things.

They may be revolutionizing the way ice cream lovers consume their calories, but there are plenty of other restaurants serving up other notables, from Griff Gelato's frozen pie on a stick, to Otto's affogato, and Ray's malted milk shakes.

In order to rein it in, we left off the trucks and about half a dozen notable ice cream sandwiches, but feel free to add favorites to the comments. Cool off and take a look at the guide:

[photo credit]

A Google Map of New York City, specifically the area around Jersey City and Hoboken. A pop-up window is displayed over the map, showing information about "Ice Cream Sandwich @ The Meatball Shop". The window includes a photo of an ice cream sandwich, the address "84 STANTON ST NEW YORK, NY 10002", and a description: "The best thing about the Meatball Shop's ice cream sandwiches: you can mix and match the flavors. The best is walnut meringue cookie with vanilla. We swear. [link]". The map shows various streets, highways, and landmarks. The pop-up window is titled "Ice Cream Sandwich @ The Meatball Shop" and includes a photo of an ice cream sandwich. The address is "84 STANTON ST NEW YORK, NY 10002". The description says "The best thing about the Meatball Shop's ice cream sandwiches: you can mix and match the flavors. The best is walnut meringue cookie with vanilla. We swear. [link]". The map shows various streets, highways, and landmarks. The pop-up window is titled "Ice Cream Sandwich @ The Meatball Shop" and includes a photo of an ice cream sandwich. The address is "84 STANTON ST NEW YORK, NY 10002". The description says "The best thing about the Meatball Shop's ice cream sandwiches: you can mix and match the flavors. The best is walnut meringue cookie with vanilla. We swear. [link]".