

FOOD

Not Enough Cooks in the Restaurant Kitchen

By JULIA MOSKIN OCT. 20, 2015

on Pinterest

Those new restaurants are no longer concentrated in just a few places. “It used to be that you would work in one of a handful of cities to cut your teeth as a young cook,” according to Daniel Holzman, a chef and an owner of the Meatball Shop restaurants.

“Now the concentration of great restaurants is spreading to more and more places.”

