Those Band of Outsiders models are totally about to eat some ice cream sandwiches

New York City Fashion Week is here (again), bringing with it a 100 percent chance that when we go out to dinner we "have" to look at models and wait twice as long to get into our favorite restaurants. Last night we made the most of it all when Editor in Chief Adam Rapoport hosted an after party at The Meatball Shop for Band of Outsiders designer Scott Sternberg (who got his start doing skinny ties and now has full men's and women's collections). Like any good party there were copious beverages (provided by Dewar's) and a whole lot of meat (provided by the meatballers). Fashion world icons like Vogue Creative Director Grace Coddington tucked into meaty red sauce beauties—living proof that fashion and food can happily co-exist. Check out the pictures from the night below.
