name
Ekvn-Yefolecv EcoVillage

description Ekvn-Yefolecv is an intentional ecovillage community of Indigenous Maskoke persons who, after 180 years of having been forcibly removed from traditional Alabama homelands, have returned for the purpose of practicing linguistic, cultural and ecological sustainability. The term Ekvv-Yefolecv implicitly embodies a double entendre: 1) Returning to the earth, 2) Returning to our homelands. With only a handful of speakers remaining, we are revitalizing the Maskoke language with children through an immersion program in which Maskoke language is the sole medium of instruction, and curriculum centers on traditional agricultural and ecological knowledge. Designed as a holistic decolonization paradigm shift, residents of the ecovillage are manifesting an off-grid income-sharing community with natural building construction and renewable energy. We are also reintroducing threatened animal species, sacred to Maskoke people, namely buffalo and sturgeon, while growing hierloom crops in a deliberate effort to decolonize our diets. Ekvv-Yefolecv mandates the revival of traditional Maskoke matriarchy and governance systems, and we practice ethnobotanical conservation, particularly for the preservation of women's medicinal knowledge and food foraging. Ekvv-Yefolecv exemplifies a departure from extractive economy and engages a collective effort to bring healing to a long abused Earth, as well as to heal an Indigenous People long inflicted by intergenerational trauma. The vision seeks to serve as an archetype for other Indigenous communities to model for Just Transition to more equitable and culturally/linguistically sustainable lifeways. TKO Farming

description
TKO farming is a family farm situated on approximately 75 acres in North-Central MS. TKO Farming is an integrated farming operation. We raise all natural fruits, vegetables, and livestock. We are currently building our infrastructure to create an educational and healing space for our local and extended communities. We require assistance from various disciplines to realize our goals of creating equitable, sustainable food economies in our rural area. Our space here at TKO Farming is a liberationist space that begins with food and ends with self reliance. To assist us in this effort we ask that you contact us: tkofarming@gmail.com or at (662)446-2171

description
Project: Located in just north of Winston-Salem, NC, I just purchased 5 acres of land. My vision is to provide fresh, healthy food options to the community. Working with the local groceries and small urban garden markets to provide CSA deliveries and market options for the predominantly black & brown neighborhood of east/northeast Winston. In addition, I hope to host dinners and art & wellness retreats in larger barn on the land as way to continue invest in the Winston community and it's preservation.

Major Need: There is about 2 acres of additional adjacent land that I would like to purchase around a cost of $20-25k to save it from being taken by developers

Major Need: Contractor or carpentry help to renovate barn for use.
